

Blessing Your Writing Instrument

Writing your blessings, prayers and spiritual journal adds an element of depth to your spiritual practice and communication with Divine Source. Blessing and consecrating your writing instrument to this sacred purpose not only shows your reverence and respect for the inspirational practice; it also enhances the writing experience. You know that you have an agreement with Spirit and with your writing instrument. Every time you pick up that pen or pencil, that spiritual tool, you invoke the power of your agreement for its sacred purpose. Just touching the instrument begins your spiritual practice and opens the gateway to divine inspiration.

Anointing

Place a drop of consecrated anointing oil on your writing instrument or use one spray of blessing spray.

Blessing

With humble gratitude, I call this writing instrument to divine service, to participate in inspired writing, to facilitate divine communication.

I call upon angels, guides and celestial beings to cleanse and purify this writing instrument, sacred space and my immortal soul. Pour out a blessing of peace, love and joy. Fill and surround us with divine light.

My blessed writing instrument, by the power and authority of the most high, I anoint you with a high calling, consecrate you for spiritual work in inspired communication and call you to sacred service.

I call forth the wisdom of the ancients, the guidance of pure Spirit, the protection of holy angels and the grounding balance of Mother Earth to bless and sanctify this writing instrument to this sacred purpose and to honor and inspire the words, symbols and marks made by it.

I call upon my ancestors, guides and energies of love and light to bless and sanctify this sacred agreement with Divine Source.

With gratitude, my sacred instrument of divine communication, I call you into service and invoke the power of inspired writing through you and me.

By the power of the most high, I seal this blessing.
Amen. (And so it is.)